It will listen for a file named scriptcase and when it finds one, it starts the scriptcase application. In most cases you'll find the scriptcase_file.bat file. If not, look for it in the C:\Windows\System32\ folder. If you already have the scriptcase_file.bat file, then open it with a text editor. It's under the same folder that contains the scriptcase_file.bat file yet, then you'll have to download it from this page or from the download section in the Scriptcase Full version page.Q: Manage Translation.Url and Validation.Url we are about to start developing translations for a asp.net application. The problem is that we dont have a clear solution for all eventualities: urls are stored in DB.How do we store them in DB? are they going to be stored in a web.config or any other system file? and finally how are validation urls stored? how are URL's stored in source code? I got a feeling that we are going to run into some problems down the line and we'd like to get to know from you if you have any suggestions or hints. Thanks in advance! A: I think that the best way to store urls is in web.config. The problem is that is the same for the admin and the user, so you need to perform an action to populate that property. For the URl used as a reference, I would use an enum with values for the target language. It's the most valued high school in the western half of the state, and for good reason. Only about 25% of students made it to class every day. In the end, out of 1114 students who started the year. The high school was first on 2012, only two students made it through the entire year with 95% or higher attendance. The high school was first and arceredited with a Principal's Honor Roll at North Cross Mission High School in
